

AMERICAN ARTILLERY IS NOW THUNDERING IN FRANCE

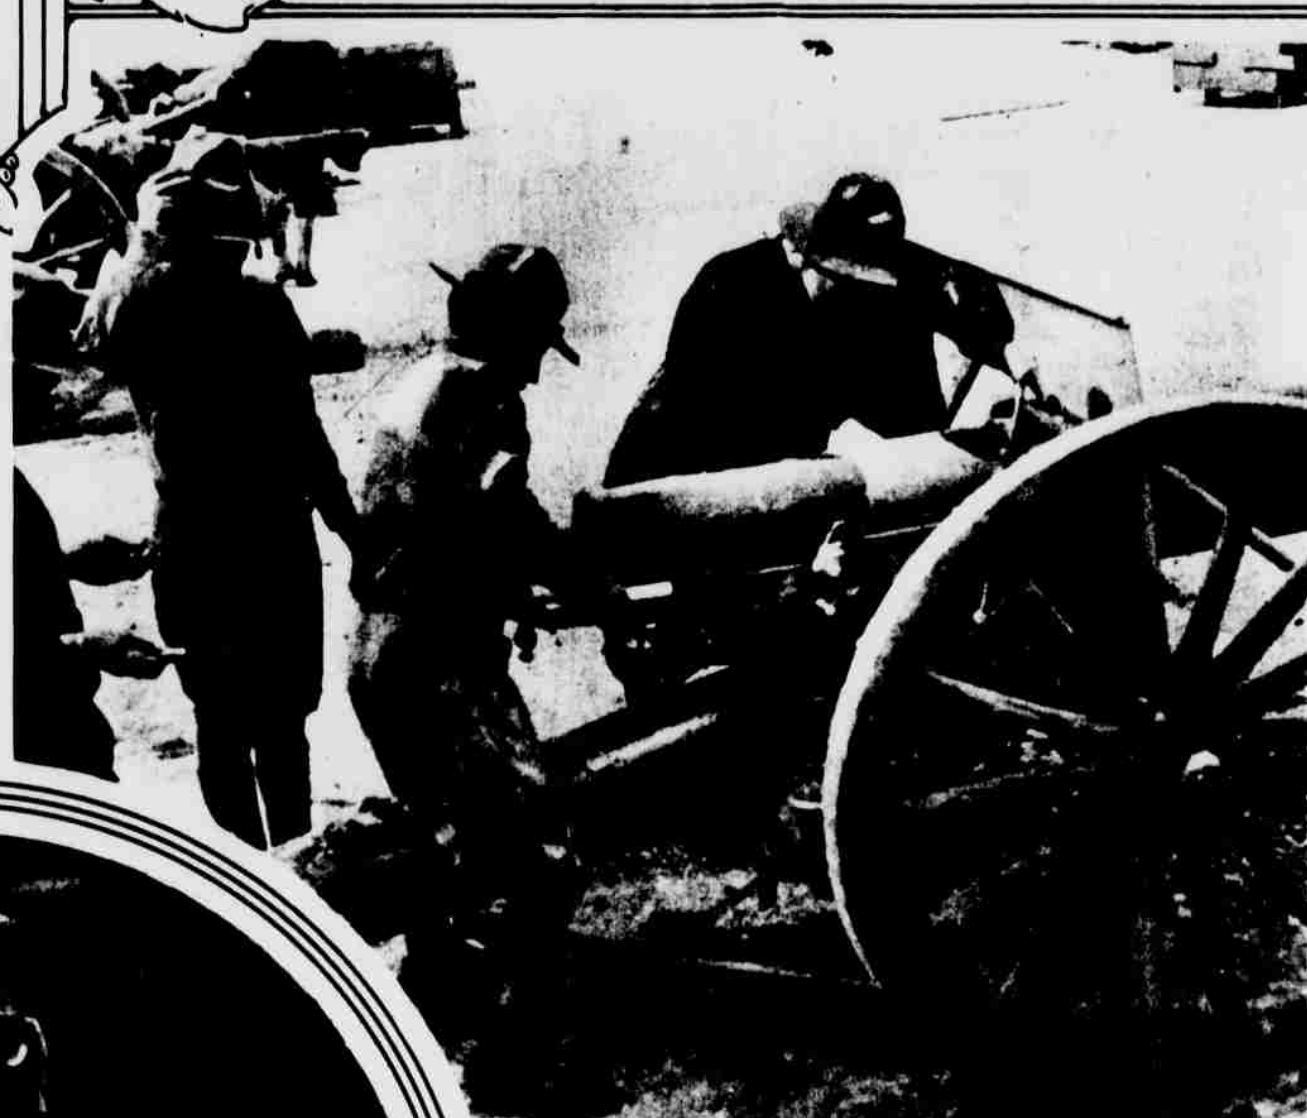

"Battery! Load!" Our boys ramming home a cartridge in one of the famous French 75s they are using against the Hun.

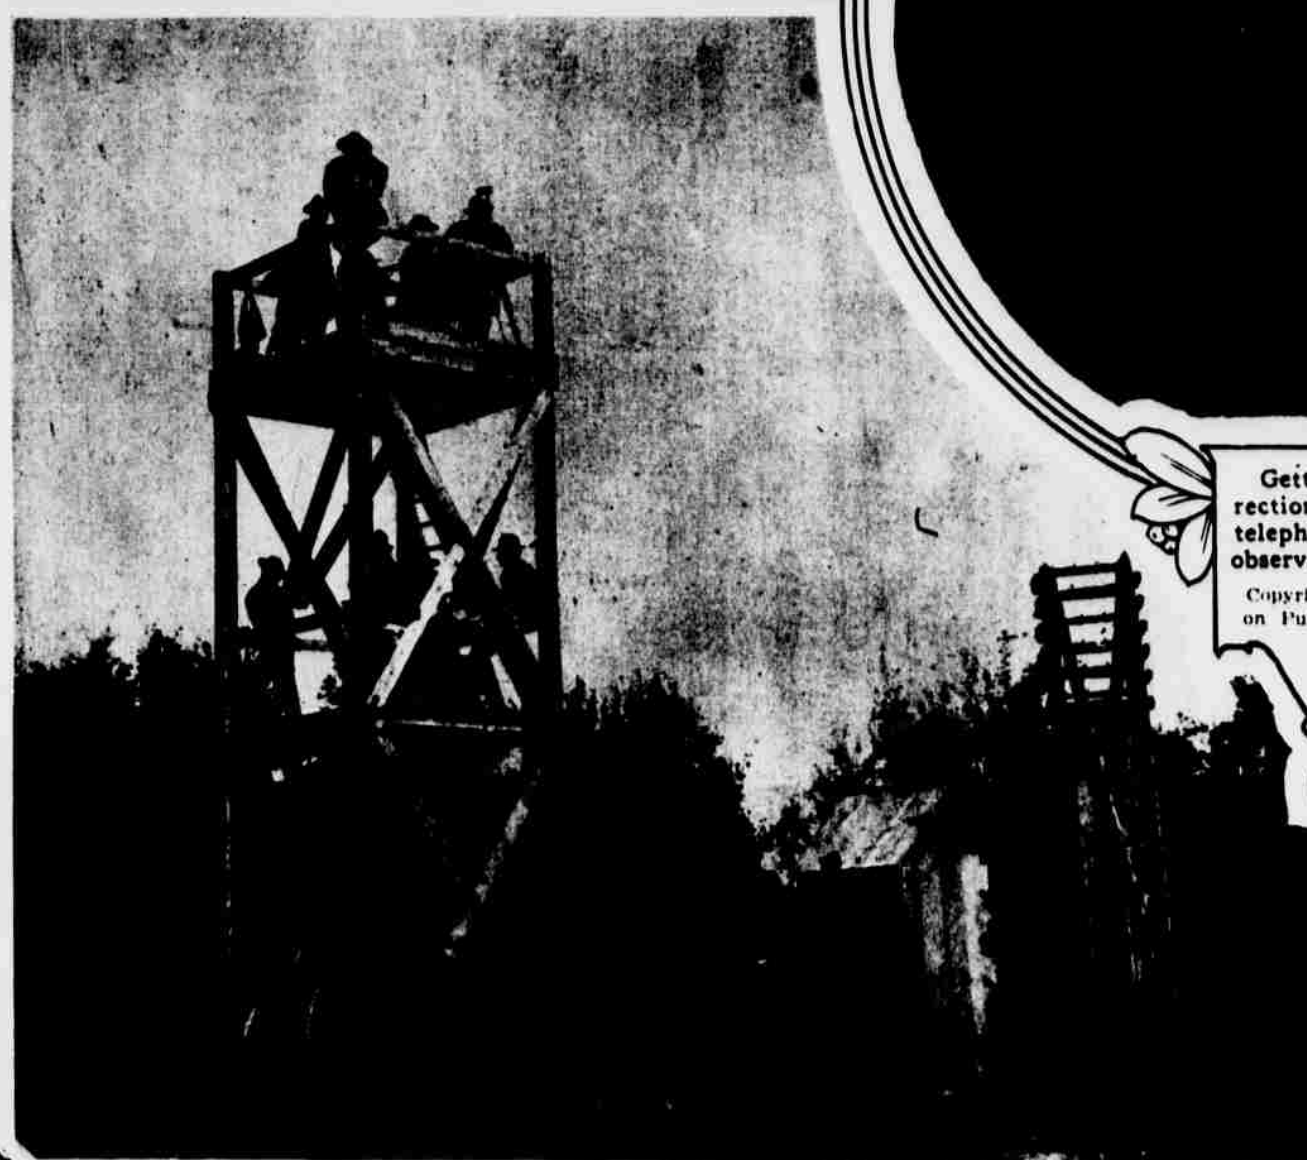

"No. 1! Fire!" Striking photograph taken an instant after the shell has left on its way. Note the recoil.

The ejector in action. See the empty cartridge case in the air just over the limber.

"In battery!" Wheeling a section into position and opening the breech preparatory to loading.

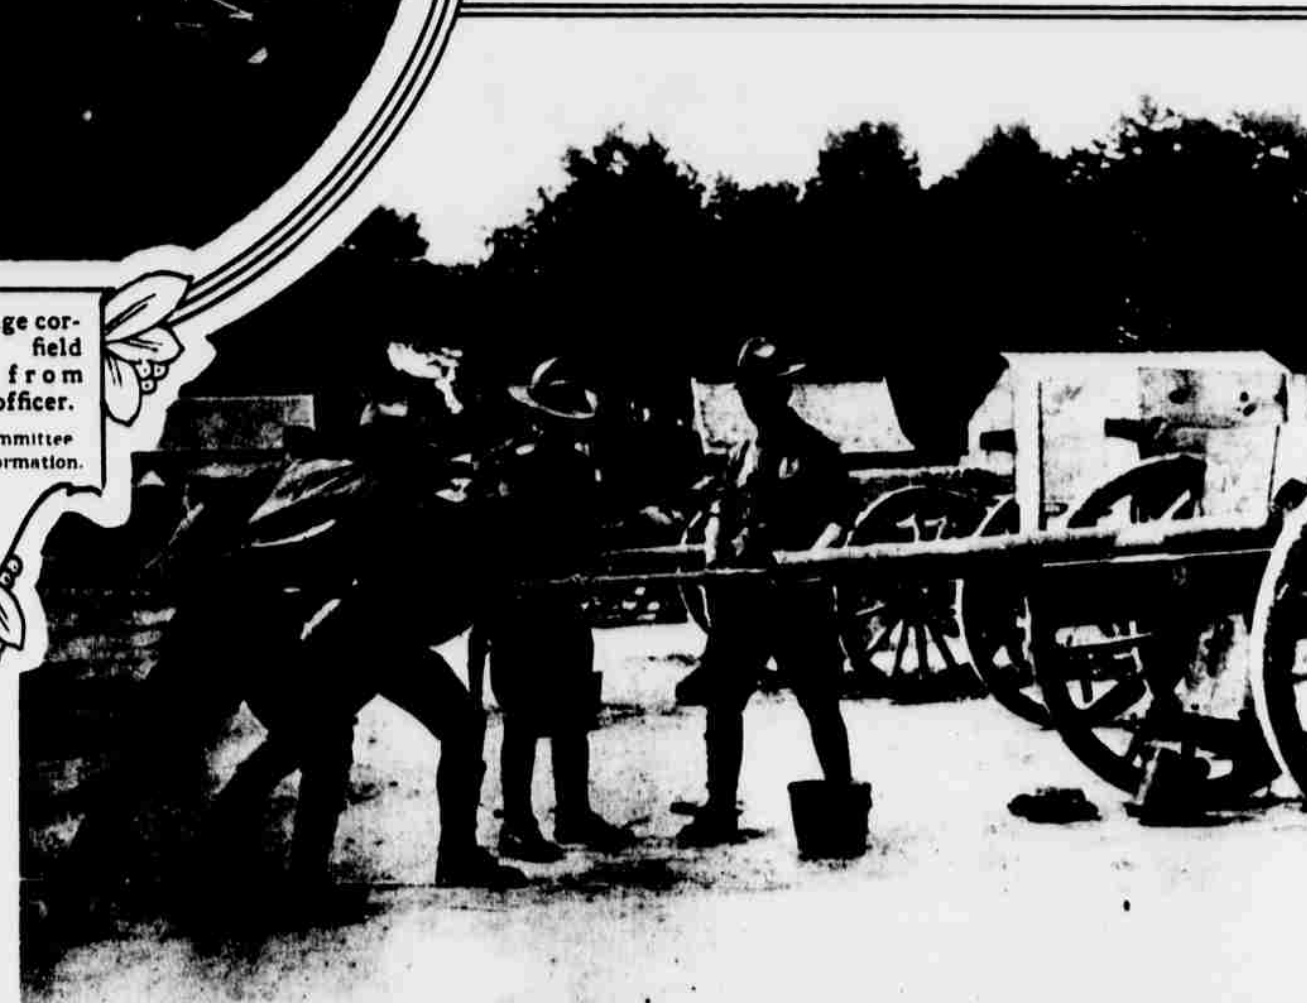

Fire control station and observation post, partly concealed by trees. Officers here order range changes by telephone or wigwag if wires fail.

Getting range corrections by field telephone from observation officer.

Copyright, Committee on Public Information.

Guns being cleaned after a day of "strafing" Hun. Note the camouflage on wheels and barrels. The husky men handle the weapons with the greatest care and affection.